Merlinhawk is the only authorized source within the above mentioned countries authorized by Honeywell Aerospace Electronic Systems to supply and commission all Honeywell Aerospace Electronic Systems products, provide technical support and conduct training on all of our aviation products. Merlinhawk provide classroom, bench top practicals and in-flight training sessions and only they are authorized and qualified to do so.

Only Merlinhawk has the capability to carry out any modifications or customisation of software to work with our equipment like the VXP and the 8500C+ on specific types of aircraft and helicopters and unauthorized sources will not have the capabilities or the authority to carry out such tasks.

Merlinhawk also have a full-fledged repair and calibration centre approved by DGAQA located at Bangalore, India and warranty services are locally available providing very short downtime. Accessories are also stocked for emergency supplies. Post warranty annual maintenance services including stand-by equipment for emergencies are locally available. Merlinhawk will take up mandatory annual calibration, repair works and other support services only for such Honeywell Aerospace Electronic Systems equipment supplied through them.

Unauthorized companies offering to supply Honeywell Aerospace Electronic Systems equipment and accessories are not approved by Honeywell Aerospace Electronic Systems to commission the equipment, provide technical support or training, especially in-flight training and do not have access to our product support network for both hardware and software. Further, we cannot guarantee the condition of equipment purchased from unauthorized sources as we are not aware of their origin.

We strongly recommend that you purchase all Honeywell Aerospace Electronic Systems products and services through Merlinhawk to ensure that you receive factory approved commissioning, training, customisation and on-going professional product support with the purchase.

Sincerely,

Aaron Brown
